6. PRIVACY POLICY & DATA PROTECTION

- The website should collect only information reasonably required for its stated functions, such as contact enquiries, reservation requests or basic administrative access.
- Personal information received through forms or support channels will be used for the relevant business purpose and will not knowingly be sold or rented to third parties.
- Where third-party services are used (for example maps, hosting, analytics, email, WhatsApp links, authentication or other APIs), those services may process data according to their own privacy policies.
- Cookies or similar technologies may be used for essential website functionality and, if installed, analytics or performance measurement.
- The Client is responsible for ensuring that its own customer-facing notices, product information, consent wording and business practices comply with applicable laws and regulations.
- The Service Provider will take reasonable technical measures to protect project information and credentials under its control, but no internet system can be guaranteed to be completely risk-free.
- If a user asks the Client to access, correct or delete personal information, the Client should handle the request according to applicable law and the website's actual data flows.
- Sensitive information should not be collected through the website unless specifically required, properly secured and expressly included in the project scope.

7. CONTENT & CLIENT RESPONSIBILITY

- The Client provides accurate business information, prices, images, logos, contact details and other content needed for the website.
- The Client is responsible for having the necessary rights to use supplied photographs, logos, product information, trademarks and other materials.

- Where applicable, source code, website files, database access information, domain/DNS details and relevant configuration documentation will be handed over.
- Third-party accounts remain subject to the rules of the relevant provider. Credentials will not be transferred if the provider does not permit transfer, but reasonable assistance will be provided to move the service to a Client-controlled account.
- The Service Provider may retain a private copy of project files for support, maintenance and backup purposes unless the parties agree otherwise.
- The Client may request removal of public portfolio/display use of the project where reasonably possible.

9. REVISIONS, APPROVAL & LAUNCH

- Reasonable revisions within the agreed scope are included during development.
- Requests that materially change the agreed design, structure or functionality may be treated as additional work.

10. SUPPORT, LIMITATIONS & THIRD-PARTY SERVICES

- Support is provided through the agreed contact channel during reasonable working periods.
- The Service Provider is not responsible for outages, policy changes, account suspension, pricing changes or failures caused by third-party platforms, domain registrars, hosting providers, APIs or internet infrastructure.
- The Service Provider is not responsible for losses caused by inaccurate information supplied by the Client, misuse of admin access, compromised Client credentials or unauthorized third-party changes.

11. CANCELLATION & TERMINATION

- If the Client stops the project after development work has materially begun, the Project Confirmation Payment may be retained to cover reserved time and work already performed.
